Non-Final Office Action

Claims 1-17 are pending. No claim is allowed.

Instant claims are drawn to a solid dosage form of tetracycline wherein the solid dosage form rapidly disintegrates in an aqueous medium, their method of preparation, and their method of treating or preventing oral mucositis.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 1-17 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over LAWTER et al. (US Patent 6,683,067) and SONIS et al. (US Patent 6,458,777). See the entire documents especially in LAWTER reference the abstract; lines 15-62 in col.1; lines 60-64 in col. 2; lines 1-14 in col. 3; lines 5-64 in col. 5; lines 19-28 in col. 6; examples and claims. The reference teaches a rapidly disintegrating tablet containing tetracycline and process of making such a tablet. Furthermore, the reference also teaches a method of treating mucositis in radiation or chemotherapy by orally administering effective amount of tetracycline.

In SONIS reference see lines 10-45, in col. 1; lines 1-5 and 53-59 in col. 3; examples and claims. The reference teaches a method of treating mucositis by tetracycline when the patient is a treated with chemotherapy, radiation.

Instant claims differ from the reference in claiming a broader scope.

Art Unit: 1616

One skilled in the art at the time of invention would have been motivated to prepare a rapidly disintegrating solid dosage form of tetracycline because the prior art cited above teaches the solid dosage of rapidly disintegrating tetracycline for the treatment of mucositis. The tetracycline is administered to the mucosa to treat mucositis at least one day before the patient is treated with radiation or chemotherapy. (see claims 6-11). In absence of any criticality and/or unexpected results presently claimed invention is considered obvious over the prior art.

A reference is good not only for what it teaches by the direct anticipation but also for what one of ordinary skill might reasonably infer from the teachings. In re Opprecht 12 USPQ 2d 1235, 1236 (Fed Cir. 1989); In re Bode 193 USPQ 12 (CCPA 1976). A reference is not limited to working examples. In re Fracalossi 215 USPQ 569 (CCPA 1982).

Accordingly, the burden of proof is upon applicants to show that instantly claimed subject matter is different and unobvious over those taught by prior art. See In re Brown, 173 USPQ 685, 688; In re Best, 195 USPQ 430 and In re Marosi, 218 USPQ 289, 293.

In the light of the forgoing discussion, the Examiner's ultimate legal conclusion is that the subject matter defined by the instant claims would have been obvious within the meaning of 35 U.S.C. 103(a).
